Continuation of 5. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Although the applicant's remarks have been considered they are not deemed persuasive. Woodring (U.S. Patent No. 6,519,686) discloses that the scheduler "controls" several aspects of the data source and the plurality of consumer as discussed in the prior Office action. The extremely broad term "control" is interpreted reasonably broad consistent with the applicant's specification in order to ensure that the applicant provides clear notice to the public as to what the applicant claims as the invention .
